9. Description: This three bay by four bay, one-and-a-half story rectangular church faces south. The church has white novelty siding and fish scale shingling at the north and south gable ends. On the south elevation there is a two story square tower. The lower one-half has novelty siding and the upper one-half has a combination of fish scale and butt shingles. The tower has a six-sided spire surmounted by a decorated metal cross. There are lancet windows; on the south elevation these are fixed stained glass and on the east and west elevation they are one-over-one double-hung colored glass. The gable roof has raised seam metal covering.

10. Significance: Hunting Hill Methodist Episcopal Church began as part of the Methodist Episcopal Circuit out of Gaithersburg. It always had a small all-white congregation, owners of small farms in the vicinity. Its land was donated by a nearby large landowner, however, Ignatius Beall Ward and his wife Elizabeth Garrett Ward, proprietors of the small country store and post office in Hunting Hill, where Ward also functioned as postmaster.

The Church cornerstone was laid in 1902 and Rev. Charles E. Ely served as the first minister. The building itself was apparently reconstructed from a Methodist Church in west Rockville which had been torn down. The Church was brought out piece by piece.

In 1965 Hunting Hill and MacDonald Chapel Church merged and in 1967 the property was bought by the Trustees of the Central Baptist Church, which uses the old church as a Sunday School.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This three bay by four bay, one and a half story rectangular church faces south. Built on fieldstone foundations, the church has white novelty siding and fishscale shingled north and south gable ends. On the south elevation there is a two story square tower. The lower one half has novelty siding and the upper one half has a combination of fishscale and butt shingles. The tower has a six-sided spire surmounted by a decorated metal cross. Eight poured concrete steps flanked by a simple metal railing lead up to the modern glass door on the south elevation. The south door is surmounted by a small, three sectioned, stained glass tympanum window. On the south elevation, the tower is flanked by fixed stained glass lancet window. On the east and west elevations there are one-over-one double-hung colored glass lancet windows. There is a diamond window on the south elevation, above the door.

The gable roof has raised seam metal covering. There are interior stove chimneys on the east and west elevations.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Hunting Hill Methodist Episcopal Church was a very small, rural church with an all-white congregation, which in its heyday numbered only around 50 members. They were owners of small farms in the vicinity with the exception of Ignatius Beall Ward and his wife, Elizabeth Garrett Ward, who donated approximately one half-acre of land for the church.¹ Ward was a large landowner and proprietor of the small country store and post office in Hunting Hill, where he also functioned as postmaster.

Although a cornerstone dated 1902 indicates the church was erected at that time and the Rev. Charles E. Ely served as its first minister from April 1902 to April 1904,² the building was apparently partly reconstructed from a Methodist Church in West Rockville called Mizpah Church which had been torn down. Elizabeth Beall Banks, granddaughter of Ignatius Beall Ward, remembers her mother saying the church was brought out piece by piece from Rockville and at one point seemed so unstable that Ignatius' son, Frank, brought steel rods by horse and wagon from Baltimore to reinforce the ceiling.³ These rods can be seen in the church today. Two stained glass windows with the name "Garrett" were donated by the Ward family in honor of Elizabeth Garrett Ward's mother and were placed at the front of the church. Mrs. Ward at one time taught Sunday school at the church.

The Methodist Episcopal Church had been established in Rockville in 1844 and reached Gaithersburg in 1867. By 1890 Gaithersburg had grown sufficiently to become a separate church with missions of its own, the circuit including Barnesville, Germantown and later, Hunting Hill.⁴ Hunting Hill Church was first on a circuit with Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church in Gaithersburg, later with Eldbrooke Methodist Episcopal Church, Tenleytown, Washington, D.C. and still later with Washington Grove Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington Grove.

In May, 1965, Hunting Hill and MacDonald Chapel Church on Quince Orchard Road merged, and in September, 1968, the two merged with the black congregation of Pleasant View Church, and all transferred to the Fairhaven United Methodist Church, some five or six miles away on Darnestown Road. At that time, only 25-26 members remaining from the Hunting Hill congregation transferred to Fairhaven Church.⁵

On October 10, 1967, the church property was bought by the Trustees of the Central Baptist Church,⁶ which had been started in Damascus the previous year as a mission of Bethlehem Baptist Church of Fairfax, Virginia. The new congregation, which numbers around 250, built a larger church and now uses the old Hunting Hill Church as a Sunday school. A parish hall on the site is now used as a teen building. The site was enlarged by two acres bought from Elizabeth Ball Banks to build the larger Church.
